Most of the staff were caring and considerate. My mum would have been the most pleasant resident you could ever have. Unfortunately, understaffing meant she would have to wait 30mins at times before someone answered her bell. She would not complain and as a result was often over looked. It took family to continually look out for her best interest. The design of her room was tight and wasn't the most comfortable. At the start of her time there, she had to endure sharing a bathroom with a lady who was abusive and unclean. That was sad days for the family to have to watch. The facility would stink at times as you would go down the corridor. We know these places are profit driven and sadly, high care people with loss of mobility are placed with those who are have dementia and many just vegetating in big chairs. As a nurse myself, I think there is so much room for improvement in the quality of life for our precious oldies, but the $ gets in the way.
