My dad has been in an aged care facility for over a year. My sister and I visit regularly and are fully involved in dad's life and care. He has several medical issues and dementia...this necessitated our decision to have him enter a facility where he would have around the clock care. The staff have been great, most of the carers do an excellent job ..of course we have our favourites that stand out as going that little extra above and beyond. It gives me peace of mind to know dad is safe. Overtime, we have developed a rapport with staff from maintenance, domestic, kitchen, carers, nurses and even the doctors ... I have found them to be doing a great job and to be genuinely caring...although to begin with I was a little sceptical. I have found management to be really lovely and caring too...even sharing some lovely words of encouragement and gestures which warmed my heart...which has added a real human touch. Dad has good and bad days of course but we keep hopeful and reassured he is in the best place possible.

Lack of staff and quality of food let this facility down. The facility is nice and the staff they do have are really good.
