Mercy Care in Abbotsford Vic has a quality of care that restores faith in the system of aged care. Staff are always present and engaged with residents. Food is cooked on site and visitors welcome to join for meals. Always clean and doesn't smell like nursing home. Activities galore. There is an art room, two pianos - which residents often play. Gardens attended by residents. I can't praise it enough. My 91 y.o friend lives there and is very happy. It was the old Good Shepherd care facility for the nuns in the adjoining convent. Needless to say the views from most windows look out to the convent and gardens. It's a happy safe clean place for residents.
